

Cindy Neely, BSN MS is a Christian laywoman, married, mother, grandmother and retired nurse leader and healthcare administrator. Cindy received her BSN from WVU 1972 and her MS in Child Development and Family Resources in 1978. She taught as an instructor for the WVU School of Nursing with a specialty in mental health. She then served as the Vice President of Woman and Children's Hospital and the Chief Quality Officer for Charleston Area Medical Center,

Charleston, WV, until her retirement.

Cindy now devotes herself to the ministry of spiritual direction and serves as the coordinator of the Spiritual Direction Ministry at St. Thomas More Parish in Chapel Hill, NC. She is certified by the West Virginia Institute for Spirituality as a spiritual director and as a director of the Spiritual Exercises of Ignatius. She maintains a private practice for individual spiritual direction, leads spiritual direction groups, workshops and silent directed retreats.

Cindy is a cancer survivor and accompanies others who are experiencing severe illness. She has worked extensively throughout her career with parents and couples struggling with relationships with their children and each other, accompanies parents of LGBT children who are struggling with coming to terms with their children's identity, and with women who are survivors of the trauma of abuse.

Cindy's nursing heart for the healing of the body, mind and soul, defines her spiritual direction practice as the companionship of another so that the authentic self, created by God, can be healed and emerge to live the full Gospel of one's life.

Cindy lives in Chapel Hill, NC with her husband Ed of 49 years.
